Dear Chairman Pai,

I'm writing as a concerned and frustrated citizen. I have been an active Net Neutrality activist since the early 2000s, and with our landmark achievement in 2015 protecting the internet for all users I thought we could finally relax. However with your unprecedented self-serving announcement that you plan to roll back consumer protections outlined in those Net Neutrality protections, I felt it necessary to file my complaint.

An open and free internet is imperative not only to innovation and technological development, but to democracy itself. It is crystal clear that your proposed rollbacks are a handout to big internet service providers and do absolutely nothing to protect American Citizens. This is akin to book burning and state sanctioned censorship.

You are no longer a Verizon Lawyer, you are charged with protecting citizens, please at least pretend that that is where your motives live.

Concerned,

Tyler Lambert-Perkins
